Major Scales are composed of two tetrachords connected by a whole step. In the following example, the C Major Scale is composed of a C tetrachord and a G tetrachord.

This tetrachord exercise may make learning the major scales easier. The remainder of this exercise and all 12 major scales are located on page 78 in the back of the book. Memorize one or two new major scales each week!

Music Reading

The Bach "Serenade" could have been written with first and second endings. Can you find where the first ending, repeat sign and second ending signs would have been placed?
